Innovation Meets Individualized Care

Burt Webb, MD, of Scottsdale Center for Women's Health

THERE ARE MANY intricacies to the female anatomy. What's more, not every woman's body is exactly alike. Many women receive similar clinical care as if their bodies are one and the same.

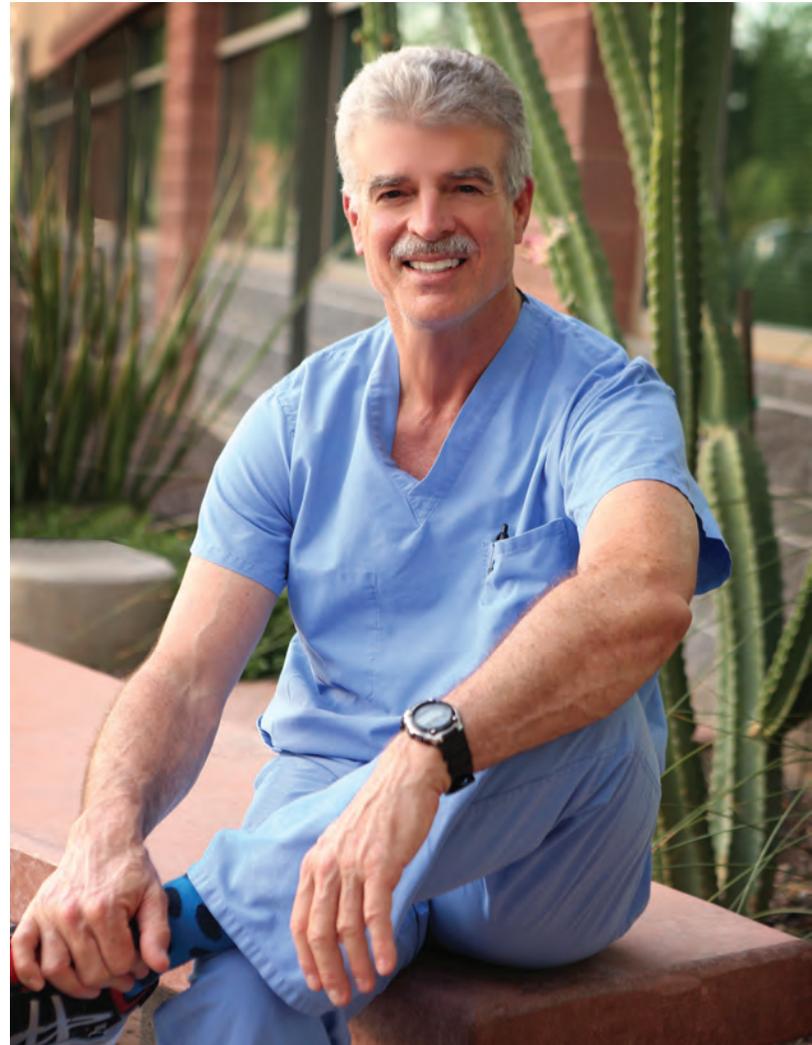

Dr. Burt Webb and Dr. Russell Bartels of Scottsdale Center for Women's Health are leaders in women's health and wellness. The dynamic duo and their staff not only adhere to the highest quality standards in healthcare, but also provide patients with individualized care based on individual needs.

With more than 30 years of experience, Dr. Burt Webb is one of the longest-practicing OB/GYNs in Scottsdale. And after delivering 11,000 babies throughout his career, Dr. Webb decided to focus on gynecology.

Dr. Webb is a world-renowned vaginal health expert and brings the most advanced ideas on vaginal and sexual health and vaginal cosmetic surgery to the Southwest. His and Dr. Bartels' practice also focuses on helping cancer survivors regain a healthy vagina and sex life, as well as inform women that they can practice a healthy sex life at any age.

With a progressive approach to medical care, Dr. Webb uses innovative techniques and procedural skills daily to help his patients. He has become exemplary in the field of women's health and is recognized nationally and internationally because of his individualized, innovative approach to wellness.

"I was the first to perform laparoscopic surgery in Scottsdale, and, just recently, I gave a lecture in Bangkok at an international meeting of surgeons on the innovative hysterectomy technique I employed," Dr. Webb says. The laparoscopic surgery is minimally invasive and uses a less painful technique, enabling patients to heal and return to their daily lives quicker.

It is his ability to think outside of the box and offer new techniques and alternatives to surgery that enable Dr. Webb to help his patients feel their best. Specializing in hormonal imbalances, bleeding problems, fibroids, endometriosis and ovarian cysts, Dr. Webb performs an extensive evaluation to get to the source of the problem.

"My profession allows me to continuously learn about new ideas and surgical techniques that help aid me in developing individualized plans for each of my patients," he says, "I get to learn about these new concepts from conferences that are devoted to women's health, and use them in my practice."

"What matters is getting to know the patient as an individual first, then understanding their health problems and creating a unique solution that their entire well-being benefits from."
